SOUTH ALBANY
Apples Selling—Good Work Going On, On the Road.

Several parties from Berlin, N. H., have been here after some apples, which they bought of John McAllister of North Waterford. They picked them on Mr. McAllister's farm here.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Canwell and daughter, Betty, of Mechanic Falls, visited his brother, Walter Canwell, and family, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Canwell and son, Harold, attended an auction at Harrison one day last week.

Roy Wardwell has been at work on the road here some days. He began at the place near Merritt Sawin's where he left off last year and has made a good road from there to the French place, so called. The road which Mr. Wardwell made last year has been remarkably good for the past season. We hope for the sake of the travelling public that he will continue in his present position. Let the good work go on. Will Grover has been hauling the road machine with a pair of horses and a pair of mules. The mules, although small, handled some big rocks that looked like a pretty good load for the big horses, but they stepped off with it as though it were an easy task for them. They are very tractable and Mrs. Grover and daughter, Mary, drive them in a single hitch.

Miss Mary Grover's feet have been troubling her badly for some time. They are hoping that she is some better. Brown arches and sciatica seem to be the cause of the trouble.

Mrs. Algie Crocker of Auburn and son, George Crocker, and family, of Norway, visited at Merritt Sawin's, Saturday and Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Millett and children called there the same day.

Mr. Sawin is recovering nicely from the operation which was performed on his foot some time ago and is able to be about his work.

Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Sawin visited their daughter, Mrs. Merton Kimball, and family, at South Waterford, Friday.

June Brown was home from Farmington Normal School for the World's Fair. J. Spofford and wife of Rumford Falls visited her sister, Mrs. Ingalls McAllister and family, a few days recently. Mr. Spofford has raised some very nice crops on Mr. McAllister's place this year.

Walter Canwell and son, Harold Canwell, went to Harrison, Monday forenoon after some furniture for the World's Fair. Mr. Canwell is recovering nicely from the operation which was performed on his foot some time ago and is able to be about his work.

Mr. and Mrs. Merton Kimball and children, of South Waterford, called on her father, Merritt Sawin, Sunday evening.

We have had some very heavy frosts, recently.

IT'S not hard to understand why Bay State Inorout Varnish is so popular with our trade.

Inorout Varnish is the smoothest, glossiest, most durable varnish you can get. Made to resist exposure to extremes of weather and rough usage—it will keep its highly polished lustre in spite of heat or cold. Fumes and smoke will not bother it in the least. Snow, rain or sleet will not blister or check it. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction on any surface—inside or out.

Norway Church Items

Methodist Episcopal

Next Sunday evening, Geoffrey Morgan, lecturer on the Redpath Lyceum Course, will give his celebrated lecture, "The Four Square Man." Another good worthwhile song service, which will begin promptly at 7 o'clock.

Sunday morning Pastor Singleton will take for his theme, "The man who got tangled in his fishing nets while his wife and two boys went to church." If that man was living today, he would find he had plenty of company. Better come hear this message and express your opinion at the close of the service. The pastor will meet you at the door.

The "Every Young Man's Bible Class" will meet Sunday noon with the pastor.

Sunday, November 20, will be Thanksgiving Sunday. The Union Thanksgiving Service will be held in the Universalist Church and the preacher is Rev. Raymond Morgan of the Congregational Church. A committee is also working for a musical Thanksgiving Service in the Congregational Church at four o'clock.

Camp Fire Talk

No. 1, By Helena A. D. Nelson

Camp Fire is an international organization for girls from eleven years of age up.

The movement started in 1911, and has since spread to over twenty-five different countries.

The home office is in New York City, where not only the vast business is conducted, but some of the best speakers in the world have made the Camp Fire Girls exhibition here.

Camp Fire Girls not only have good times, but do worthwhile things, and have real ideals. "True and simple ones, but they are high as hills and deep as seas. First is the law: Seize Beauty; Give Service; Pursue Knowledge; Be Trustworthy; Hold on to Health; Glorify Work; Be Happy." Second is the watchword, "Whole." A word made from the first words, "work," "health," and "love." Third, the "Desires" of the first ranks: Wood Gatherer; Fire Maker; Torch Bearer.

The program of the Camp Fire includes about every wholesome activity which would be of interest to adolescent girls. These are divided into seven crafts which form the basis of Honors and Awards. There are seven hundred or more honors which may be earned towards these progressive ranks.

In the Camp Fire program any girl can find the thing she is most interested in. The manual work, the experience of working with others towards a common goal.

Girls receive inspiration from Camp Fire in the first place they enjoy belonging to a club. What she does is more important and thrilling than what she might do alone.

In accomplishing the various tasks of the camp, she receives a lot of pleasure. "She receives her reward in the imagination and love of beauty." In Camp Fire, a girl finds the satisfaction of her deepest longings.

THE CALL OF THE PROPHET

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 19:19, 20; Amos 7:14-15; Isa. 61:1-3.
GOLDEN TEXT—I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then I said, Here am I, send me.PRIMARY TOPIC—God Chooses His Messengers. SECONDARY TOPIC—God's Call to Service.INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-ICS—The Call of the Prophet; The Call of the People; and ADULT TOP-IC—The Need for Modern Prophets.A prophet is one who speaks forth the message of another. A prophet may foretell events, but his primary business is to speak forth God's message.I. The Call of Elisha (1 Kings 19:19, 20).1. His occupation. He seems to have been a well-to-do farmer, as there were twelve yoke of oxen in service when God called him. It was while engaged in his common duty that he received the divine call.2. How he was called. Elisha cast his mantle upon him as he passed by.
II. The Call of Amos (Amos 7:10-17).1. His occupation (v. 14). He was a herdsman and gatherer of sycamore fruit.2. He was a prophet, not by succession nor trained in the prophetic schools.3. God called him from his humble life to stand before the king. God is not straitened for helpers. He raises up workers from unexpected quarters, fits them with His Spirit and sends them forth.

III. The Call of Isaiah (Isa. 6:1-8).

1. Isaiah's vision of the Lord (v.
1-4). No one's ministry will ever be fruitful until he has had a vision of the Lord.(1) He saw the Lord on His throne (v. 1). The supreme need of a servant of God is to have a vision of Him, even to see Him on His throne. Just now, perhaps as never before, we need a vision of the enthroned Lord as the awful darkness is settling down upon the world.(2) He saw the Seraphim above (v. 2, 3). Their standing indicated that they were in readiness to do His bidding. Their equipment with six wings showed their ability to execute the divine will. The divine presence, once pair was needed to veil the head from the divine glory, one pair veiled the feet which had been soiled in contact with the world, while the third pair was suspended in midair waiting to depart on the divine er-and. As they waited in His presence their continued cry was "Holy, holy, holy."(3) He saw manifestations of majesty (v. 4). As the holy ones entered the very doorposts moved and the temple was filled with smoke.
Smoke indicates the divine presence in anger (Ex. 19:18; 20:18).2. Isaiah's conviction (v. 6).
When he got a vision of the holy God he was smitten with a sense of sin.
The reason that men think well of themselves is that they have never seen God. Face himself as wholly vile. He realized that he had sinned in speech, and if in speech, then in heart, therefore the cry of despair.3. Isaiah cleansed from sin (v. 6, 7). Having been convicted of sin, and confessed his sin, a burning coal was sent from the altar and laid upon his lips. His penitential guilt was forgiven and removed.4. Isaiah's call (v. 8). His call from God did not come until after his cleansing. The purged soul is the ready for the Lord's service.5. Isaiah's dedication (v. 8). As soon as he was cleansed he quickly responded for service. The one who has been sanctified and made meet for the Master's service readily responds to the call of God. He did not wait to see the end from the beginning, but freely gave himself up to that service.6. Isaiah's commission (v. 9-13).
Because of the unpromising outlook Isaiah shrank from his responsibility.
He saw the people steeped in selfishness, but in spite of that the Lord assured him that their blindness and sin would not continue forever. The people would go on in sin, he was taken into captivity, and the land left desolate; but as the oak, after shedding its leaves is for a time apparently lifeless, yet it retains its substance and so can manifest its life, the prophet is given to see under this figure that despite the deadness of the nation a remnant shall be saved.
The holy seed of the kingdom shall come to fruition in the last days.

EARLY OCTOBER

The leaves are falling, one by one,
From bluest autumn October; Shines down on wood and leaf,
And now the brightest woods' edge, And gold brown of autumn edge,
The bluest autumn smiles to me.The birds are flying, one by one,
The warmer climes of southern sun And "Good-bye" sweetly call; While down the winding country ways
The birds are flying, one by one,
And God smiles over all!The days are fleeting, one by one, Each day renewed with setting sun,
In winter snows are here,
And winter waits for "Violet Days"
And winter waits for "Violet Days"
To Spring, Spring, Spring.—BONNIE GARDNER GATES,

The Potato Crop

Shortage of Crops Due to Unfavorable WeatherUp to about August 15th Aroostook County looked forward to having a record-breaking potato crop. Last year it produced approximately 40,000,000 bushels of potatoes. This year it was anticipated its crop would be even larger.
But on or about August 15th Aroostook County, as well as the entire State of Maine and a portion of the entire eastern section of the United States, was visited by many successive days of "muggy," foggy, and rainy weather. At that time the late potatoes, which constitute a large proportion of the Aroostook crop, were doing well, having large tops and every indication of being in excellent condition. Almost in a day the condition of the late potatoes changed. They were thirds grown, were affected by a blight.
It was in vain that the farmers sprayed their crops. The tubers were affected to do much good. The tubers were affected and as a result a great many of them show signs of rot.Up to this time the government estimate on the Aroostook crop of marketable potatoes has shrunk to about 34,000, 000 bushels and those who are well informed as to the actual condition appear to think the total crop will be hardly more than 30,000,000 bushels than the figure the government survey has given.In consequence of the shrinkage of the potato crop the price of "spuds" is steadily increasing. Potatoes which were selling for $1.25 a barrel a while ago are now quoted at $2.00. It is probable that this price will continue to advance as the shortage of potatoes throughout the eastern part of the country becomes more pronounced.The bad weather which so seriously affected Maine potato growers also damaged the potato crop in other states. The farmers in New York and Pennsylvania do not dig their potatoes as early as do the farmers in Maine so it will not be until after the New York and Pennsylvania crop is harvested that the full extent of the damage can be ascertained. If it develops that the eastern potato crop falls below the government estimate, there is every reason to expect that spuds will soar in price. Potato prices are subject to the law of supply and demand and when potatoes are scarce the price naturally advances.While the Aroostook situation cannot be termed disastrous at this time it can be said to be extremely dubious. Potato growers who were looking forward to bumper crops will not have as many spuds to market as they expected to have prior to August 15th when the blight began. The advancing prices will be helpful to the farmers of Aroostook and help make up their losses but it will not entirely extricate them from the position in which the shortage will place them.Farmers are not profiteers. The most of them are disposed to sell their crops as soon as they can get them to market.
If potatoes are taken up by dealers who hold them for advancing prices it is usually the dealer who benefits and not the farmer. Many potato raisers involve themselves in debt at the beginning of the planting season. They are compelled to pay out large amounts at the start for fertilizer, labor and other things and must meet their obligations just as soon as possible after the potatoes are harvested. Comparatively few of the farmers are in a position to hold their potatoes so that they can dispose of them at high prices which come when it becomes evident that the potato crop is short.Anything which adversely affects Aroostook County at any time is of serious consequence to the state. While many potatoes are raised in all parts of this State, Aroostook County is, of course, the largest producer. The purchasing power of its people depends entirely upon the condition of the potato crop and the market.It is unfair to charge the potato growers with scheming to deplete the price of potatoes by spreading stories about a crop shortage or by exploiting the fact that many potatoes which have already been dug are in bad condition. There is no combination of potato farmers large enough to attempt anything of this kind, even though there might be some tempting to do something of the kind. This year, so all who seem to know about the situation declare, the Aroostook farmer will be hard hit.All of which is additional evidence of the fact that the year 1927 has been abnormal so far as weather is concerned in the scope of the claim made by the United States Weather Bureau that there has been nothing but abnormal about the weather.
At any rate, it will be difficult to convince the Maine potato growers that the unfavorable and abnormal weather in August did not do them a lot of harm.

POLE DIGGING MACHINE

Central Maine Power Company has purchased a pole digging machine which will dig a hole 24 inches in diameter and 8 ft. deep where there is no ledge and set a 40 foot pole in less than ten minutes. This machine is operated by two men.Using this machine on a recent job two employees were able to set 900 poles in about three and a half weeks, while if work had been done by the old method of digging by hand, it would have required the services of a large crew of men two or three months.With this and other labor saving devices, Company officials hope that the cost of rural lines, especially, can be cut down so that more of this very necessary work can be done. During the summer, Central Maine Power Company has undertaken many rural line extensions and when the present work is completed, about Nov. 1, the Company will have built since January 1st, 137 miles of rural lines, serving in the neighborhood of 646 farmers.

When Lightning Strikes

You Don't See It Come from Anywhere —It Is On Hand, Here and Now, Says This Story of Last July 14

"The Nomad" in Boston Transcript

Holy Hill, Maine.

It is the fate of every farmhouse on the hills of New England to be struck by lightning—sooner or later, some day or some night. The Nomad has been impressed by this fact while sitting in the L. L. farmhouse on Holy Hill in the midst of a terrific thunderstorm, and waiting for the lightning to strike that particular house—which presently it did.
You can see how it works. There is a visible landeup, spreading off in all directions, in the whole extent of whose visible reach there are doubtless a hundred farms, with buildings. In previous years dozens of these farms have been hit by lightning and the buildings burned.In this particular storm of Thursday, July 14—of this series of storms, for there were six heavy electrical storms, one after another, with intervals of comparative calm between them—at least five farms were damaged. In one of the buildings were destroyed. In another four cows were killed in a pasture.
In the other three cases weird and eccentric damage was done. Now as you view this process, taking past performances with the present, you see the thun-derbolts steadily narrowing down their scope, coming a step nearer, a step nearer, taking this tree, ripping up that roadway, smashing this or that house, until the turn of your own house comes at last; if not in this storm then in the next; or if not this year, then the next, or the next; its turn will come as inevitably as comes the final catastrophe in every life.The Nomad was entertaining this thought on this same tumultuous afternoon of July 14, and looking out, as far into the reeking flood of rain as his eyes could go, and seeing the wringing violet-colored bolts coming down from to earth and hearing their immediate de-tonations, his turn and the turn of the house came. It seemed that the house (as well as the man) had been waiting for the lightning a good many years. If the house had ever been struck before, there was no record of it. The event was due.There were some things in the experience of its arrival that no one had ever told the Nomad about before. That is always the way. When any big thing has happened to you, like being eight hours under fire in a battle, or like having a glorious air-flight, or like this being struck by lightning, the most interesting things about the experience are things that no one has ever told you of.
This is well, for it gives you a chance for a little descriptive writing. It may be interesting to the reader, if he is going to be struck himself sometime, to know just what happens, and just how the thing seems.

You Don't See It Come

In the first place, you have always thought of lightning as coming down from the sky. Perhaps it really does come that way, but it will not seem so to you, when you are getting it. It will occur as a proceeding happening and originating right there in the room where you are. It does not come from any where. It is a crushing and instantaneous presentation of the Here and Now—an inevitably sudden creation of an awful thing.There are details due to your psychology, but the main thing is this obliteration of time, space, extension, in one outburst that is no doubt everywhere, but which most commanding is here. In that awful detonation, the Nomad somehow gathered the impression that a giant giant bomb had exploded in the corner of the room between the writing desk and the window close beside it. At the same instant, a ball of livid fire, the size of a bushel basket, presented itself to his vision. Was it really seen, or was it merely the gleam of the lightning striking through eye-lids that had been instinctively and instantly closed?Then what about the sensations? The chief sensation was one of being struck deaf, for a time was actually the case. One's head was full of a positive, palpable, painful kind of deafness. Over the body was a tremendously jarred feeling, a fuzzy, cindery sort of sensation, but no real pain except in the ears, and no loss of consciousness or mental balance whatever. The first thought was, "It has happened—we've got it," then the Nomad heard, in a sort of faint, faraway squeak, the voice of the Companion who was sitting by his side on the sofa: "Are you all right?" There was mutual dumb-show assurance that each was all right.
were on fire. It was not.

Horror and Havoc After Stroke

But Lord, now we could smell sulphur, or something like it, powerfully, and could see a sort of yellow fumes through the rooms. It also now looked as if the bolt had come from somewhere. Two lights of glass in the window—only two—smashed into longitudinal fragments; plastering off the walls, various articles here and there picked out to be thrown to the floor—not broken, but looking as if they had been carefully lifted down.
Board above the chimney book-case spin-tered into fragments the size of matches.
On the front of the house, "apboards" torn off and hurled half way down the hill. Cornice of the house deposited in the field across the roadway. Upstairs, a similar havoc of split boards and wall plaster on the floor and the same strong smell and fumes like sulphur.Nothing of the destruction did the inmates see or hear at the time of the stroke. They heard the sudden, deafening explosion. They saw—both of them the quickly vanishing "ball of fire."
All the ripping and smashing of woodwork and plaster was absorbed in that explosion.And no one could tell where the bolt came in. It looked as if it went out up-
seemed to go out the window down stairs, by the side of which the ball of fire was seen, and also it appeared quite plain that it came in there. Evidently it did both of these. A current seemed to have risen from the ground and one also to have come down from the air, and the two met in that spot before the writing desk, and when they met there was the explosion.The Nomad had said that five other places and people were struck, in the same storm, within sight of the hill. The Nomad had a chance to interview some of the people who were involved in these affairs. All agreed as to the "ball of fire," and as to the smell of sulphur.
Manifestly these are common accompaniments of thunderbolts! In all of these cases the lightning played eccentric tricks.
A woman was using a lemon-grater in the kitchen. The grater was knocked out of her hand, and she was not hurt. Everybody was deafened, not quite completely, for some hours.

Storm Was of Tropical Ferocity

Never, except once in a tropical country, has the Nomad seen such a storm as this one of July 14 in western Maine.
It was a series of six terrible tempests, one after another, and covering altogether, some four hours, but in each of the separate storms. The road up to Holy Hill was left a series of chasms like those of a landslide, one of them ten feet deep. To those who were in it, it seemed next to Noah's deluge, but there wasnothing in the Boston papers about it!
That made it look like a special item.
Stratton got up for the Nomad's benefit.
And wasn't it a remarkable way for Maine to treat a sympathetic visitor from Massachusetts?

Keep Kidneys
Active!You Can't Feel Well When Kidneys Act Sluggishly.TO feel always tired, lame and aches is too often a sign of improper kidney action.
When the kidneys act sluggishly, waste poisons remain in the blood, and are apt to make one languid, stiff and aching, with dull headaches, dizziness and often nagging backache. A common warning that the kidneys are not acting right is scanty or burning secretions. Assist the kidneys with Doan's Pills.
Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increases kidney activity. Ardorsed from coast to coast.
Ask your neighbor!There are details due to your psychology, but the main thing is this obli-
awful detonation, the Nomad some-
through eye-lids that had been in-
the body was a tremendously jarred feeling, a fuzzy, cindery sort of sensation,
has happened—we've got it," then the
show assurance that each was all right.
were on fire. It was not.Horror and Havoc After Stroke But Lord, now we could smell sulphur,
smashed into longitudinal fragments;
Board above the chimney book-case spin-
tered into fragments the size of matches.
the field across the roadway. Upstairs,
Nomad had a chance to interview some
Manifestly these are common accompani-
ments of thunderbolts! In all of these cases the lightning played eccentric tricks.
pletely, for some hours.The Gertrude Ann Beauty Parlor

Miss Susan Wilkins Dead—Miss Gage, of Waterford, died of a heart attack on Sunday.

Our village was saddened on Thursday morning to hear of the death of Miss Susan Wilkins who has lived among us since her retirement from teaching.

Miss Wilkins had been a teacher in Brooklyn for more than forty years and her pupils and many of them have kept in touch with her during all the years that have passed since she finished teaching.

The funeral was held on Saturday morning from her late home and she was laid to rest beside her family of whom she was the last survivor. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, mute testimony of the love and esteem of her friends.

Mrs. Mary Wilkins Knight of Bridgton, was in Waterford on Saturday to attend the funeral of her cousin, Miss Susan Wilkins, returning to her home on Sunday.

Miss Mahel Gage is spending several weeks in Waterford.

Mrs. Bertha Adams finished her work as assistant housekeeper at Poland Spring, and is staying with her cousin, Miss Plummer, for a few days before going to her home in Chatham, N. J.

Mrs. Mary Gardner and her infant son are being cared for at the home of Dr. Hubbard.

Mrs. Nellie Stone returned on Thursday from a visit with relatives in Ipswich and Newburyport.
